

Language and Learning Clinic's Caregiver Workshop Series

Teaching the First Steps in Communication

*Does your child have trouble communicating?
Are you interested in teaching your child
how to interact with others?*

About the workshop

This workshop was created for parents and caregivers of individuals diagnosed with autism spectrum disorder and other developmental disabilities that do not yet talk or communicate with others reliably. The focus is on requesting skills, or learning to ask for what you want. The goal of the workshop is to teach you how to select the right language modality (speech, sign language, pictures, etc.) for your child, select the right words to start with, and to start building your child's communication skills. This workshop is appropriate for parents, caregivers, or professionals who wish to learn more about initial communication and how to set a solid foundation for learning.
